1. Introduction, Purpose and Scope of Policy:

Morley College London recognises that freedom of speech and freedom of expression within the law has fundamental importance for further and higher education institutions as places of education, learning and the unbiased pursuit of truth. In particular, such institutions are obliged under section 43 of the Education (No 2) Act 1986 to take reasonable measures to protect freedom of lawful speech.

In addition, the Governing Body is required by Article 15.3 of the College's Articles of Association to have regard to the need to ensure that academic staff at the College have freedom within the law and subject to any statutory obligations placed on the College to question and test received wisdom, and to put forward new ideas and controversial or unpopular opinions without placing themselves in jeopardy of losing their jobs or any privileges which they may enjoy at the College. Further and higher education institutions have a responsibility, so far as is reasonably practicable, to protect and advance the principle of academic freedom.

A principle of freedom of lawful expression is also enshrined in Article 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights.

Whilst free speech is a human right, it is not an absolute and is subject to free speech

2. Equality and Diversity Analysis Screening:

In accordance with the College's Equality and Diversity Policy, the development of this policy complies with the Equality Act 2010 in ensuring due regard to eliminating discrimination, advancing equality of opportunity and fostering good relations (see section 4 of the Equality and Diversity Policy). An equality analysis will be completed if there is a risk the policy may affect different groups protected from discrimination. Consultation will be carried out with staff. If an equality analysis is required, the Equality and Diversity Co-ordinator (Head of Quality and Standards) will advise on completion and the analysis is to be included as an appendix to the policy.
